Slash quotation & proposal writing time by 60% AND Increase their Effectiveness by 20%

Are you spending hours writing quotations and proposals?

Are you tired of proposals failing to win projects?

Dear Designer,

How much time do you spend writing quotations and proposals? And how do you feel when the proposal fails to close the order?

As a graphic designer your time needs to be spent on what you do best. Designing. Giving expression to great ideas. Generating enough cash-flow to plan that exotic getaway. Spending enough time with your friends and family.

But the hard fact is every new project has to go through those boring hoops. You need to submit a quote. Then draft and submit the proposal. Then there's competition to deal with. So to make your proposal stand out you end up spending many hours. And after all that hard work and stress, how do you feel when there's no "go ahead" from other side?

But did you know there are many designers out there who spend less than 30 minutes on quotes and proposals... without hiring any admin or subscribing to any agencies. They do it themselves. And 30 minutes includes revisions. Just imagine how much more time that gives them to focus on the project itself.

This also allows them to accept more new projects and grow the business.

"Only if I knew this secret sooner. I spent years struggling writing proposals and now I write winning proposals in less than 30 minutes." Greg Miller, Graphic Designer, MN
